Title: Prior pain exposure and mere possession of a placebo analgesic predict placebo analgesia: Findings from a randomised, double-blinded, controlled trial
The Journal of Pain

Dear Dr. Yeung:

Thank you for submitting "Prior pain exposure and mere possession of a placebo analgesic predict placebo analgesia: Findings from a randomised, double-blinded, controlled trial" to The Journal of Pain. I am pleased to say your manuscript has been accepted for publication.

Prior to publication, you will receive page proofs from Elsevier Science, which publishes The Journal for the American Pain Society. Proofs are made available to you electronically, in PDF file format. You will receive notification via e-mail.

Prior to publication, you will receive page proofs from our publisher. Proofs will be made available to you electronically; you will be notified via email.

Please note:

 Do not add in-press or other unpublished citations to your references section when making page corrections. The Journal does not permit unpublished references.

 If citations are added to your bibliography, the entire section must be alphabetized and will require renumbering of citations within the text. In this case, contact the Editorial Office in order to provide a corrected Word document.

COVER ART: If you have any images that you believe would be suitable for use on the journals cover, please submit these electronically to Julie Eisele, JOP Managing Editor, at jpain@jpain.us.

Thank you for submitting this interesting paper.

Sincerely yours,

Mark Jensen, PhD
